NO MORE APPENDICITIS If You Bathe Internally

It is safe to say that if the colon (lower intestine) were kept free from waste matter appendicitis would never develop, for it is waste matter in the appendix that brings on this dangerous condition.

There is just one successful and natural way to keep the colon free from all waste and prevent any accumulation—that is, Internal Bathing by means of the "J. B. L. Cascade."

Warm water, properly applied, is Nature's own cure, and it prevents many other ills too—constipation, biliousness and the many more serious ills they bring on yield readily to this treatment, and you always feel bright, clear and confident.

Drugs must be persisted in and the doses increased to be continuously effective, but the Internal Bath gently assists Nature and keeps you regular and healthy.

The "J. B. L. Cascade" is now being explained and sold by all Riker-Hegman Drug Stores in New York and Brooklyn.

Grand Central Palace last night at the second annual entertainment and ball of contributors to the Vacation Savings Fund.

Next summer when the ribbon comes sways and quivers in the heat waves and the heated air in the white goods department, and when the worn out body is demanding a rest far from the canyons of New York, these same girls who danced last night will be able to escape from the turmoil into the peaceful country or by some wave washed shore. All because they saved the little each week that made the much which will take them away. Dimes and quarters have been poured into the fund and kept watch over by wealthy society women, whose superior methods of organization and kind hearts are making up to poor working girls some of the joys which rightfully belong to youth and labor, but which would never be theirs unless a guiding hand reached out from comfort and luxury to point the way.

$55,000 IN BANK FOR A RAINY DAY.

There is $55,000 in the bank now awaiting the call of the ten thousand girl workers who were rainy-day wise enough to prepare when shown how. Last night's entertainment will add several thousand dollars.

Two hundred girls presented a play written especially for the grand ball by Rachel Crothers and Josephine Daskam Bacon, and called "What Your Vacation Can Do."

To the strains of the much "ragged" "Spring Song," twenty maidens in nile green draperies floated amid a woodland scene just like the did for "Gertie" when you paid $2 a seat, and two glorious creatures danced much the same as high paid dancers do when interpreting the moods which Mendelssohn is supposed to have indulged in when writing the "Spring Song." The only difference was that the dancers last night had something on the paid ones, that is, more on—in the matter of clothing.

Two white robed heralds through megaphones announced the joys that will come with vacation time, challenging each other to show a reason why the working girls should not enjoy their earned rest. No one would gainsay the argument and the play proceeded. The stage was divided in two and the same performance was gone through in unison by both sides. Out trooped girls representing various vacation sports, bathing, tennis canoeing and the rest. In turn they sang the lure of their sport to the tune of "Pop Goes the Weasel," the chorus being taken up by thousands of girls in the audience. The four seasons were portrayed by different batches of young women whose appropriate costumes blended into a riot of color which showed most effectively against a background of green. And when the two little Spig girls bearing the illuminated signs of the order appeared, there were two hundred girls on the stage singing the Spig Lyric about useless giving at Christmas when love might replace grudging presents.

and 10,000 out on the floor equally jubilant and singing with them.

While the chairs were being removed for dancing the girls took a trip down the Vacation Pike, looking in on the motion pictures, the lady palmist and card reader, and listening to the phonograph concert of operatic records.

TEACHING THE GIRLS HOW TO TURKEY TROT PROPERLY.

Then the dancing began. Soon Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Castle, who came over from the "Sunshine Girls" after the show, appeared on the floor teaching the vacation girls how to turkey trot in the correct manner, for really you know there are about forty variations of that well known entertainment. Many of the girls were already fairly proficient in the turkey trot, but after the lessons it may be safely predicted that certain wobbly porches on certain farm houses are going to shake to their very supports this summer.

Society folk who are directing the girls in saving for vacation were in evidence early, occupying reserved boxes from which they beamed on the passing show.

Older youths from the upper stratum came in regulation gold-plated evening harness, intending to pay their respects and remain long enough to fulfill their promises. They idled a while at the bar downstairs without checking their topcoats. And then when the entertainment was half over and they had voiced the thing, a "jolly nuisance" they concluded to come up and look at it.
And straightway each gilded youth shed his outer chrysalis and stayed for the evening. For they realized that here were thousands of beautiful girls whose eyes had failed to become hard though their lot was hard, and who might be worth while talking to and dancing with, too, for the new angle which they could give to existence.

In the various boxes were the following members of the Vacation Committee: Miss Robinson Smith, Chairman; Mrs. August Belmont, M. S. Selden Bacon, Mrs. Rogers H. Bacon, Miss Rechel Crothers, Miss Maud Rivers Horland, Miss Gertrude A. Freeman, Mrs.
Eola S. Garrison, Miss M. C. Hammond, Mrs. Penobny Ogil, Mrs. Herbert L. Pratt, Mrs. William Rand Jr., Miss Caroline Shippen, Miss E. J. Shuart, Miss Evelyn Shippen Smith, Mrs.
Andrew V. Stout and Mrs. Harold J.
Villard.

The advisory committee, including Henry W. Taft, Ralph Pulitzer, John D.
Crimmins, George Barr Baker, Mgr.
Mooney, Louis Stewart and Arthur Williams, had perfected arrangements for the ball over six weeks ago.

Sharee Sympathy.

From the Chicago letter (Dana).

Professor and Mrs. Hadley were on a train bound for New York, where Yale's president was to speak before a national convention. He made use of the hour and twenty minutes he spent in the train by rehearsing his speech in a low voice, using his hands to emphasize passages.

A kindly matron who was sitting directly behind Mr. and Mrs. Hadley, and who had been watching and listening, leaned forward and, tapping Mrs. Hadley on the shoulder, said feelingly: "You have my sincere sympathy, my poor woman; I have one just like him home."
